International Conference
on Cervical Cancer

Overview

The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, National Cancer Institute, and M.D. Anderson Cancer Center Conference on Cervical Cancer will bring together leaders from the multiple disciplines involved with all aspects of cervical cancer causation, prevention, and screening so as to identify what our present knowledge state is — what questions need to be answered, and how they could be answered.

Objectives

Upon completion of this program, participants should be able to summarize the perceived deficiencies in our knowledge regarding cervical cancer, list the important discoveries needed to answer these questions, and outline a series of investigations that will allow such a list to be prepared.
